MEMORANDUM FOR: Director of Training

SUBJECT : Weekly Activities Report - Language School

1. I attended the first working session of the Interagency Roundtable's subcommittee on materials development this week and came away with the feeling that the group takes its mission seriously. FSI and DII, the biggest publishers of language teaching materials in the government community, and the Office of Education, which funds most of the significant materials production in the academic community, were represented. The subcommittee is aware of the GAO's concern about duplication of effort in this area and plans to review and report on everything that anyone except commercial publishers is producing or planning to produce. It will not concern itself with area materials, but will keep track of new texts, tapes, self-study packages, visual aids, PAI efforts, and possibly new developments in CAI as applied to language training.

2. Two of our instructors have been accepted as special students at Georgetown University in a course on foreign language testing. [REDACTED] will start the course in January. Since the University is generally reluctant to admit students who are not degree candidates, we owe the decision to admit our instructors to [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] of the Senior Seminar staff, after a number of attempts to reach Lady Barbara Ward Jackson by telephone to inquire regarding her willingness to speak to the next Senior Seminar, spoke to her agent on 12 December. The agent indicated that Lady Jackson is willing to speak on three set topics for an honorarium of $2500 plus expenses. Lady Jackson is the highest paid speaker on the U.S. lecture circuit. [REDACTED] declined to pursue the matter further and thanked the agent for the information. STATINTL
